Jill Hotchkiss

Well, we've survived February! This is one of our craziest months for the newspaper and video company. We had over 30 sales to attend this month and consequently travelled thousands of miles just in February.

There have been some tremendous Hereford sales so far this season. I think the quality of cattle offered is even better than last year. This combined with a number of other factors are bolstering demand for Hereford bulls and females across the country.

Once again I think commercial producers are realizing the benefits of the Hereford cross. A number of sales I attended this month had quite a few new commercial customers, many of which were Angus breeders. I think registered Hereford breeders are improving in the areas of promotion, customer service and improved breeding programs. All of these factors are equally important — don't underestimate customer service. I had one commercial breeder tell me they switched buying bulls from a breeder who was closer to them for one that was hundreds of miles away primarily because of customer service. It's easy to overlook the value of customer service if you are the one that should be providing it.

Of course with the dwindling cow numbers across the nation, females are in demand and selling well. USDA's February 2nd Cattle on Feed report showed the lowest number of beef cows in the United States since it started keeping track some 50+ years ago. The report indicated cow

War and cattle: How one Nebraskan made it from two tours in Ramadi to ranching in the Sandhills

By Leo Adam Biga
Flatwater Free Press

Garrett Dwyer runs about 500 head of Hereford and Angus cattle on his Bartlett, NE, ranch on the east edge of the Sandhills. The land he's on today has been in his family since 1894, when his great-great grandfather homesteaded the place. Dwyer, who grew up here with his three sisters, is now the fifth generation in his family to ranch this land.

But Dwyer didn't take over this ranch until he did something far from home. For five years, he served in the U.S. Marine Corps, including two combat tours in Iraq. Now, he's taking advantage of a national nonprofit initiative, the Farmer Veteran Coalition, that aims to re-energize small agriculture by supporting military veterans who want to work the land.

Dwyer well knows that small family farming and ranching is increasingly rare. The century-long trend of families abandoning or selling off farms has slowed, but not entirely halted, in recent years, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture census data.

The Farmer Veteran Coalition is attempting to bend that trend line, while helping service members transition to a post-military career.

Some veterans, like Dwyer, 36, grew up on a farm and left to enlist, always intending to come back.

Other farmkids-turned-veterans have

Quality Counts When Developing or Purchasing Replacement Heifers

by Ruth Wiechmann

With the USDA reporting lower numbers of cows reproducing in the country, ranchers looking to build back their herds after reducing numbers due to drought may be considering whether to purchase bred heifers, or to purchase heifer calves to raise to build back their herds or offer for resale.

Don Melcher says that figuring out what works in each individual situation and staying flexible should be key components in the decision making process.

Melchers develop and sell spring-calving females. The majority are purchased and developed but some are from their herd.

Don and Jean Melcher along with Kevin and Sherry, Matthew and Kristen and their families, raise registered Hereford cattle in northeastern Nebraska. Their ranch, near the town of Page, has been in Don's family since 1911. Along with marketing the bulls they raise, for nearly 20 years Melchers have purchased heifers to breed and resell.

War and cattle: How one Nebraskan made it from two tours in Ramadi to the Sandhills been lured back by the opportunity to carry on a legacy or to start one of their own. And still others with no farm or ranch background are grabbing the chance to get trained to farm for the first time.

In Dwyer's case: "It's pretty special to have something like this that enables me to continue to work and ranch the same land as my early grandparents," he said.

The Dwyer Ranch and football is all Garrett Dwyer knew as a kid, until the morning when the high school sophomore watched as planes smashed into the World Trade Center and Pentagon.

"I remember very vividly watching that on TV and thinking, well, we're going to go to war with somebody," Dwyer said. "That sealed the deal for me then, so I knew that's what I wanted to go do. I wanted to serve."

He enlisted at 18 as soon as he graduated from Pope John Central Catholic High School in Elgin.

Soon, he found himself assigned to patrol duties outside the central Iraq city of Ramadi, in the middle of a dusty, destroyed urban landscape far different from the rolling pastures back home.

He knew returning to the family farm was an option when he got out. He also knew he needed to learn modern farm management and business practices to succeed in competitive modern agriculture.

Once back in civilian life, he enrolled in the University of Nebraska's Nebraska College of Technical Agriculture. He completed one program, Combat Boots to Cowboy Boots, geared to veterans. He became that group's public face as the Curtis-based ag college sought to attract more veterans.

He then did another, 100 Cow Advantage, that offered business training and mentoring.

His hardest struggle: morphing from battle-hardened Marine to student-civilian.

"School was filled with 18- and 19-year-olds and then there was me. It was culture shock going from where I'd been and what I'd done to getting thrown in with kids," he said. "That transition was a real tough thing for me to handle."

Meanwhile, the national Farmer Veteran Coalition learned of Dwyer. In him, the coalition saw a rugged, soft-spoken steward of the land, a poster farmer-veteran for its mission.

Soon, Dwyer was traveling the country promoting the Farmer Veteran Coalition and serving on its board of directors.

Nationwide, FVC counts 37,000-

Garrett Dwyer runs about 500 head of Hereford and Angus cattle on his ranch near Bartlett, NE. As the sign says, the ranch was established in 1894.

plus farmer-veteran members across all five branches of the service. Many are service-disabled vets. Members are eligible to apply for grants.

Its largest monetary resource, the Farmer Veteran Fellowship Fund, has awarded more than $4 million to members. Grant applicants must devise a business plan as part of their application. Dwyer received a grant when first starting out on his own.

He loved that the Farmer Veteran Coalition understood that, if you are lucky and work hard, farming can pay the bills.

It can also heal.

"Agriculture is a very tough business," he said. "It is also I think therapeutic to put veterans into working with the land. Just that physical activity, even the mental hardships that come along with farming and ranching...Veterans like the challenge of it. There's always something new and always something to do. Nothing stays the same."

As with military service, he said, farming requires initiative in order to succeed. There's no one else to do the work for you, he said. No one else who gets the credit, or the blame.

War and cattle...

"You reap what you sow... That's rewarding in itself."

He's found that the lifestyle helps ward off the demons that can come with PTSD, which he was diagnosed with upon his return stateside.

"The biggest thing to help with that is staying busy," he said. "It's hard to really sit back and think about the past with family and work chores. It will keep your mind off those things. That seems to be the best medicine right now."

His own PTSD has eased in severity, he said, in part because he feels fortunate to have "another mission" to give him purpose. Others haven't been as fortunate – Dwyer has lost friends to suicide.

"Unfortunately, some of my buddies didn't move on," he said.

Because Nebraska farmers are spread out across the state, hobnobbing with fellow vets who actively farm isn't always easy. But in Dwyer's case, his nearest neighbor, Travis Reich, is also a Marine veteran. Reich still serves in the Air Force Reserve.

They share the Marine Corps service and experience. They grew up near the same time and place. They're also married with kids. Dwyer has four. Reich has three. Both their wives are nurse practitioners.

"We've got kind of the same thing going on. It's neat to have all that," said Dwyer. "We know each other now rather well."

Across fence posts, over beers at a bar or in online meetups, farmer-veterans tend to have each other's backs, they say.

Dwyer is among 307 veterans in Nebraska who have been assisted in some way by the Farmer Veteran Coalition, the group says.

Dwyer and five others have received grants, including Marine veteran Dan Hromas with Prairie Pride Acres in central Nebraska and Brenda Dutcher, a member of the Nebraska Army National Guard, who with her husband runs Briar Rose Farms in Humboldt.

Dutcher used her grant to buy a large trailer to transport, refrigerate and sell pasture-raised beef at farmers' markets. Having a resource like the Farmer Veteran Coalition is, she said, "important to help farmers starting out avoid debt."

Dwyer used his grant to buy a truckload of alfalfa for his herd, which he's more than tripled in size.

He says he struggled his first couple years on the ranch after taking out loans to modernize the ranch's equipment. But more recently, the balance sheet – and life – have stabilized.

Still, Dwyer well knows: Farming is always a crapshoot.

"Even in the last few years I've seen just about everything, from flooding to drought, then COVID," he said. "The market prices fell off, now they're bouncing up due to inflation. Nothing surprises me anymore."

He also navigated disputes with his parents over how to run things. Often they preferred the status quo, and he wanted to ranch differently.

"You don't want to do what they did or what grandpa did. If you do that you're not going to get very far."

His folks are no longer actively involved in the operation. Now Dwyer is intent on learning new things. He wants to make the ranch better. He wants to secure a legacy for his own children.

"I tell everybody I'm working for my kids now. That's what it's all about. If they want the opportunity to come back here, I want it to be there for them. It's a tough, challenging process to pass this onto the next generation."

Some days, he wonders what he got himself into. Most days, he has no regrets. At the end of the day, even hard days, he thinks it's a good way of life. He thinks it's a good place to raise a family.

He sees the challenges, but also the rewards.

"All the work you put into your operation, at the end of the day you can look back and say, hey, I did that."

As Dwyer has become his own rancher, more support for veterans in agriculture has emerged.

One, the AgVets program, is a three-year training program for veterans interested in, or already involved with, agriculture. The federal program, facilitated here by Nebraska Extension and the Center for Rural Affairs, includes workshops, field demonstrations, business planning and mentoring – much of it led by military veterans who now farm.

Dwyer is glad to see new resources for veterans re-entering agriculture or entering it for the first time.

Sustaining a farming operation can be hard. It can be a lonely, overwhelming experience, Dwyer said. It's why he leans into the camaraderie of fellow warrior-farmers. Their shared enemies today? Weather extremes, pests, government regulations, grain prices, bank notes and market fluctuations, he said. There's plenty to talk about.

"We all have the military in common and we're all in agriculture," Dwyer said. "Being able to talk about farming and ranching operations is pretty neat."

Replacement Heifers...

the fall so that we can market eighteen month old bulls," Don said. "We develop and sell spring calving heifers. We try to get some red baldies, black baldies and straight Herefords every year, but it can depend on what's available. We are more conscious of quality than numbers. A few of our own Hereford heifers might get put into the group for resale if we don't need them in our registered herd, but we predominately market heifers that we purchase."

Quality and disposition are priority when it comes to selecting heifers.

"We don't just go buy run of the mill heifers," Don said. "It's important to us to know the reputation of the people behind them and know their genetics and the ranch they came from."

One long time source sells Don all of his heifer calves each year with the agreement that he gets the first option to buy back whatever heifers he needs for replacements in his own herd out of those cattle.

"He's not set up to AI, and he figures that this way he can run more cows, and doesn't have the expense or labor involved to shorten the calving window on his replacement heifers," Don said. "He can take home a group of heifers that are AI bred, calve early, and are done calving in two weeks, so it works very well for him."

Melchers are careful in their selection process and in continuing to cull anything that doesn't fit their ideal from the group prior to breeding season.

"We are particular about what groups of heifers we buy, and we sort hard before they go to the breeding pasture," Don said. "We want Hereford or F1 Hereford cross cattle that are structurally correct, and that have less white rather than more. I don't care how good they are if they're wild, I pass. If I walk in and they run to the far end of the pen I keep walking. It's a hard no, because our customers won't put up with wild cattle."

Still, Don says there is room for variation in type within the confines of high quality.

"The heifers aren't all exactly alike," he said. "Not every ranch is alike. We deal in really good cattle but they don't all have to be alike. Some are smaller framed, others larger, and there's a place for both. A lot of times we have a variety. For the most part we keep source groups together, if you want a certain type you can look at different groups see which fits."

Melchers synchronize the heifers and AI them to proven calving ease bulls. The heifers are ultrasounded in fall, and tagged for short calving intervals.

"We breed the Herefords and black baldies black; the red baldies we breed red," Don said. "We try to keep the red baldies and black baldies separate through the breeding season. Due to pasture situations we may put some Herefords and baldies together with a cleanup bull, but we can still identify the groups that came from different sources for our customers. We normally offer gate cut with a ten percent sort. The bottom line is that a buyer won't leave with a heifer they don't want."

Melchers mainly sell their bred heifers private treaty.

"It varies from year to year; sometimes they sell early, sometimes they sell late," Don said. "There were several years we calved some of them out and sold pairs in the spring. Ranchers have to make decisions on the fly based on our circumstances. You can take the averages, but reality says that we don't know how much rain we're going to get, how much grass will grow in the pastures or how much hay the fields will produce. You can throw the averages out the window when it's twenty-five below zero the week before Christmas.”

Chuck and Kerry Christman started raising replacement heifers for resale in 2009.

“Our kids had all gone off to school and jobs, and a shortage of help made us rethink our operation,” he said.

They chose to transition away from a traditional cow/calf operation and run yearlings on their place just north of Lemmon, SD.

“I like to find heifers from a smaller operation, where a producer might keep the top end back but still have really good cattle to offer,” Chuck said. “I know I’m not going to keep them but I know that if I’m going to stay in business that I need to have traits that keep guys coming back to buy replacement heifers from me. I like to look at the mother cows, see the whole herd, see the sires. It’s important to know if they go back to big reputation breeders that are after strong maternal traits. You can tell a lot by looking at the mamas. I want to purchase heifers from guys that cull for disposition, bad bags, and bad feet.”

After decades raising registered Herefords, Chuck still prefers to purchase Hereford or Hereford influenced heifers.

“We all have different ideas about what we like,” he said. “I think we need some Herefords and baldies; I like them for their size, milk, temperament, efficiency and hair coat. I’m a big disposition guy. It might not be the biggest thing but it’s pretty important to me. A lot of that is environment and how the cattle are handled.”

Chuck prefers to purchase his heifers private treaty if possible. Although heifers from a commercial herd won’t have EPDs, he says that observations made walking through a cow herd or watching steers from the same producer go through a sale and on feed can give a pretty good idea of the quality of the heifer calves.

“I like to see what they are fed,” he said. “I prefer cattle that are fed lightly, for perhaps a pound and a half daily gain, so that they are on the gain when they go to grass. This promotes cycling and helps the conception rate. If they come off a feedlot weighing up, they are going to go backwards when I turn them out and they won’t cycle as well.”

Chuck says that quality, good conformation and uniformity sell. He tries to purchase heifers from the same herds every year, and he follows up with his customers to make sure that the heifers are meeting expectations and performing well. He synchronized and AI’d his heifers until a few years ago, when his bull bred heifers out sold his AI bred heifers.

“The ranchers I sell to calve their heifers same time as they calve their cows,” he said. “We don’t leave the bulls out for a long time, and we ultrasound the heifers and sell them in groups based on their calving cycle. I like to keep in touch, see how calving went, if the bulls I picked sired nice calves, how they did calving, how they bred back as three year olds, how they are doing in the cow herd. Some guys might get tired of me, but I like to make a quick call to check in or go look at them if I am able. Customer satisfaction is important to me, and it involves quality as well as genetics.”

How much is too much to pay for a bred heifer? That will vary from ranch to ranch. The University of Nebraska-Lincoln recently released their 2023 Replacement Heifer Forecast, which includes a range of data and spreadsheets that producers may find helpful as they run their own numbers. That resource can be found at <https://cap.unl.edu/livestock/beef-heifer-replacement-forecast-2023-production-season>.

“An old rule of thumb is that two weigh up cows or two heifer calves should buy a bred heifer,” Don Melcher said. “I’m an old guy so that goes back a long ways. It might not be everything you need to consider, but it gives you a starting place to know if bred heifers are priced reasonably.”

Chuck Christman said that the same rules apply to purchasing heifer calves.

“My Dad always said, ‘Don’t let an auctioneer talk you into how to spend your money,’” he said. “Set your price beforehand, know what you want to buy and buy the best you can, but don’t get caught up in the bidding. As a seller you like to see it; as a buyer you have to be pretty careful. The buyer is at the mercy of the market; you have to know what your inputs are whether you are going to AI or turn bulls out, know what your grass is worth and what your time is worth. Knowing your finances is the big thing.”

Don Melcher said that whether raising your own heifers or purchasing bred heifers, it all comes down to what works well on a particular operation.

“They say that the secret to success is to buy low and sell high,” he said. “I usually do the other. It’s like any other expense or investment, you have to invest in next year’s calf crop. This ranch has been in the family since 1911. I’m the third generation, my sons are the fourth. We have grandkids on the ranch that will be the fifth if they decide to come back. It’s been good to us.”

numbers down by 4% which surpasses the previous low reached in 2014. In addition the report showed beef replacement heifers down 6% from last year. This was a decrease of more than 300,000 head. So the nation's cowherd continues to rebuild. Improvement in drought conditions will continue to be a component in rebuilding cowherd numbers.

The northern states continue to be hit hard with winter weather and it's been really tough on cattle. In our area some bulls, commercial and registered, have frozen testicles. While an unfortunate and expensive situation for those affected, it has contributed to an increase in demand and prices at bull sales for others.

Market analysts and optimistic auctioneer Joe Goggins, who is an excellent market analyst himself, are predicting good cattle prices, reduced feed prices and increased profitability coming for the cow/calf industry this year. Now if they can just make it rain in the drought areas! Anyway, it's nice to hear this level of optimism and I'm hopeful it will come to fruition.

See you down the road!

Fawcetts Honored by Reinhold Family at Black Hills Hereford Show

Each year at the Black Hills Stock Show in Rapid City, SD, Larry and Robin Reinhold and their family honor a Hereford breeder or family with the presentation of a special Hereford painting or print. They do this in memory of Larry's dad, Tige, who was a Hereford man to the core. This year's honoree was the Fawcett family from Ree Heights, SD. Pictured are Larry Reinhold (left) with Cheryl and Keith Fawcett.

The Reinhold ranch, Lone Tree Ranch, is north of Rapid City. They also operate Rainbow Bible Ranch.

Obituaries

Roger Myers

Roger Keith Myers, was born on February 18, 1953, in Gregory, SD, the third son, and sixth child to Keith and Lois (Smith) Myers. Roger was taken from his loving family on February 1, 2023, the result of a one vehicle accident south of Winner, SD.

Roger was baptized into the loving arms of Jesus Christ on April 5, 1953, by Pastor Kenneth C. Farr in Dallas, SD.

Roger delighted his children with stories of his youth growing up on the family place north of Dixon, SD. He loved his childhood in rural South Dakota, walking to Dixon Dam to spend the evening catching fish he would never eat or playing baseball as a proud Dixon Dodger.

Not known for his table manners, a young Roger retaliated against sister Lois Ann coaxing him to eat his vegetables once by launching peas across the table at her. He didn't anticipate a well-timed duck and the buttered peas landed on the wall where it left its permanent stain. The incident was shared many times around the dinner table, a night filled with laughter, some form of punishment but ultimately, the family love that permeated their small home.

Roger attended District 57 Dixon Elementary. He graduated Gregory High School in 1971 and attended South Dakota State University, in Brookings, SD to pursue a degree in Animal Science. Not only did Roger become a lifelong Jackrabbits fan, but he met the love of his life at Hobo Days in October 1973. On June 26th, 1976, Roger and Marlene Geigle were united in marriage at First Lutheran Church, in Wall, SD.

Soon after the wedding the couple moved to Frazee, MN where he was employed with Daggett Trucking. A few months later the couple relocated to Dickinson, ND. Though Roger loved driving truck, he didn't want that lifestyle to raise a family. In 1978, Roger and Marlene made their home northeast of Clearfield, SD. There was so much snow on the ground that January, they didn't know they had a sidewalk until the following spring.

Two weeks later, after a long drive behind a snowplow, daughter Sherri joined the family. That next spring, while the family loaded out their first crop of calves to sell, Melanie chose that day to make her entrance. Roger and Marlene were getting used to their two-brown haired/brown eyed daughters and didn't realize how much the arrival of a special blonde they named Michelle would change the family dynamic for the better. Roger embraced being a "girl" dad for eight years, teaching his daughters the importance of hard work and responsibility, but giving them enough wiggle room to have some great adventures on the place. While Roger and two other families were out moving cows, the end cap to the family, Jay, decided to arrive eight years later.

Roger's parents instilled the love of 4-H into his children's lives. It wasn't a hobby you tried out as an 8-year-old but a lifelong commitment to Head, Heart, Hands and Health. He participated in showing all types of livestock and developed a passion that later would become the center of all family vacations. He shared stories how his parents would take him to the South Dakota State Fair, drop them off on Sunday, only to return the day they showed their animals. The kids were free to roam all day on the midway if the animals were taken care of. At night, they slept in the back of the farm truck next to the cattle barns. His biggest 4-H accomplishment was showing a market steer at the International Livestock Show in Chicago, IL.

Roger was a leader of the Clovervale 4-H Club, where his children were members. His proudest memories were the kids showing his Registered Polled Herefords and a variety of market steers. Showing livestock soon expanded from the Mid Dakota Fair to feeder calf shows held in Gregory, Valentine, and Stuart. They also took the family on the road to the Central States Fair, the South Dakota State Fair and the annual family vacation at Western Junior Livestock Show in Rapid City each fall. Roger took this opportunity to renew old friendship, for when he showed livestock during his youth. WJLS was not just a Myers family vacation destination but a Tripp County 4-H family vacation. These traditions with their nuclear and 4-H extended family formed bonds that lasted a lifetime and were ones Roger cherished.

Roger took pride in his small herd of Registered Polled Hereford cattle. He fed out calves each fall until spring and also sold his yearling bulls all over the Midwest. His family hosted the SD Junior Hereford Field Days in Winner as well as participating in two different SD Hereford Association Hereford Tours.

A servant by nature, Roger was a Tripp County 4-H leader of the Clovervale 4-H Club, Tripp County Fair Board leader and member. He was also a board member of the Rosebud Hereford Association, South Dakota Hereford Association, and served as an advisor to the South Dakota Junior Hereford Association and at the Western Junior Livestock Show. He also served as a Clerk and Supervisor for Dog Ear Township.

"I wanted to give you our final close out on our steers. You can look at the numbers, but in a nutshell, we averaged 4.4 lbs/day (dry matter conversion of 4.45:1). This was sending them in the middle of December, weighing 620 lbs. We are selling them on the grid, with a base price of $137.00. Scott Hall, Circle 3 Feedyard, said this was the best cost of gain and daily gain he had fed in a very long time. We received a net savings from efficiency and carcass premium of $251/head, or over $20,000 for this pen."

Kevin, I believe much of our quality is a function of the good bulls and females we have gotten from you. I so much appreciate your cattle quality and the way you have been very helpful to me. Thank you!"

In his short retirement, he spent evenings playing cards with his children and their spouses, talking to other cattlemen across the area on his tablet or he could be found at the Ampride, Lil' Feller (now the Gus Stop) having coffee with the other retired ranchers and farmers. The guys enjoyed lively conversations about beef and grain prices, politics, and fond memories of those that couldn't make it to coffee going forward.

John K. "Jack" Vanier

August 6, 1928 - February 10, 2023

To call Jack Vanier a founding father of a bygone rural Kansas culture would be three things at once.

An understatement, a compliment, and a chance for Jack to respond in his characteristic unassuming nature – accompanied by that brilliant smile – that he was just doing what came naturally.

In his self-effacing, low-key way, it would also offer a golden opportunity for Jack to take issue with the "bygone" sentiment.

Soft-spoken and successful. Kind and productive. Reliable and generous.

If someone were to ask, "What does it mean to be called 'the salt of the Earth?'" One would only need to spend a few minutes talking about Jack Vanier to get a deep and meaningful sense.

Jack grew up on the bedrock of honesty. He came of age with a work ethic. Integrity drove his success in business. With his bride, Donna, he raised a family on faith. Jack Vanier did not struggle with a greater cosmic meaning of why he was here, and that's what made him such a good husband, father and grandfather, rancher and businessman. That's what made him such a good friend.

He loved his neighbor and walked humbly. His sense of humor put you at ease as soon as you encountered him. Jack Vanier was fun to be around.

Born in Salina, Kansas to John J. ("J.J.") and Lesta Vanier. Jack operated the CK Ranch in Brookville, KS, once the largest producer of purebred Hereford cattle in the country. The family also held ranching interests in Wyoming, Colorado, and Oklahoma.

Jack offered his gift of service and leadership capacity to a host of organizations, including the American Hereford Association, the Kansas Livestock Association, the Boards of Directors of the National Cattlemen's Association and Archer Daniels Midland. Roles in which he provided wisdom and insight, but mostly what he would have described as common sense.

And while much has changed in Kansas and the world during Jack Vanier's time on this planet, his passing is not the end of an era. Jack's legacy is with us today. You see it in Mary's compassion for her community, in Marty's brilliant smile and intellect, in the life lessons John learned from his father. In Jack's grandchildren, you don't have to look very far, to see a direct reflection of his light and love.

You see it in the promise of entire generations touched by Jack's benevolence through scholarship, mentorship, and stewardship.

Jack lives on, in the thoughts and memories found uppermost in the minds and the warm feelings which lie deep in the hearts of all who encountered him. When we think of Jack Vanier, it is what comes naturally.

His contributions to agriculture, the livestock industry, to Kansas State University, and to all the organizations and people he touched, are many and significant. But it was by living his life the way he did that marks the profound contribution Jack Vanier made to our greater society, the rural culture and a way of life worth preserving, that will stand out.

Not because he wanted it to, but because he didn't.

Preceded in death by his wife, Donna Lindsey Vanier, Jack is survived by sister Joyce Hale and brother Jerry Vanier of Kansas City, daughter Mary Vanier of Manhattan, daughter Dr. Marty Vanier of Manhattan and her stepchildren Katie (Kevin) Buehler, Kirsten (Nathan) Beemer and Kathy Krause, and son John K. Vanier II of Salina, his daughters Lauren Vanier and Sarah (Ryan) Geiger, John's wife, Kim, and children Pallie (Bryan) Swartz, Landon Koehn, Jess Koehn, and Ty Koehn, Jake Mooney and Norah Mooney.

A funeral will be held on Friday, March 3, 2023, 1:00 p.m. at Christ Cathedral in Salina, Kansas. The family suggests memorial gifts to any of the following organizations: the Salina Community Foundation and the Meadowlark Hills Good Samaritan Fund in Manhattan. Memorials may be sent in care of Ryan Mortuary, 137 N. 8th Street, Salina, Kansas 67401.

Gene Leddy

Gene Arlin Leddy, 85, of Twin Brooks, SD passed away on February 13th at Avera Milbank (SD) Hospital after a courageous fight against cancer. He was a devoted farmer and rancher, proud Irishman, and above all a loving father, grandpa, and great-grandpa. Gene was born on January 29, 1938, to Ralph and Ethel (Henstrand) Leddy on the family farm. Gene lived all but six months on the family farm near Twin Brooks. Gene attended country school at Grant Center #6 through the eighth grade, and graduated from Milbank High School in 1956. During high school, Gene was active in FFA, 4-H (Whetstone Valley General Livestock Club), and a myriad of livestock events. On September 18, 1960, Gene married Sandra Tesch. They were blessed with six children.

Gene worked as a rancher and farmer his whole life on the Leddy Hereford and Red Angus Centennial Farm. In 1955, Gene enlisted to serve for the Army National Guard in the 740th Transportation Company. He served as the company clerk and was part of the unit when they were activated during the Berlin Crisis in 1961. The six months that the unit was in Colorado was his only time off the farm. Family meant the world to Gene. When Gene's children were young, he was an active volunteer with the Grant County 4-H program and the South Dakota Junior Hereford Association. He was proud of the fact that the Leddy Farm hosted a 4-H livestock judging school for over 75 consecutive years. He was also active with the South Dakota State Fair. He continued to show cattle until he "semi-retired" and then he volunteered as a courtesy cart driver up until the summer of 2022. During his life, Gene only missed one State Fair, 1952, due to a severe polio outbreak in South Dakota and his parents were scared he and his siblings would get sick. Gene always remembered birthdays — sending a card and a gift of money to all kids, grandkids, and great-grandkids to "buy yourself a treat." Gene loved to play cards, spend time visiting with friends and family, tending to his cattle, and watching birds. He was active until his last days.

Gene is survived by his son, Mark (Susan) Leddy of Milbank, SD, and their children: Lauren (Colby) Sanders, Andrew (Danielle) Leddy, and Kate (Sam) Wickstorm; his daughter, Jody (John) Neubauer of Olivia, MN and their children: Jessica Dooner, Jacob (Ashley) Dooner, Ty (Kenzy Lippert) Dooner, and Austin Neubauer; his daughter, Jana (Jon) Gadberry of Sioux Falls, SD, and their children: Jack (Breanna) Gadberry, Elizabeth (Sam) Koob, and Ben Gadberry; his son, Kent Leddy of Brookings, SD, and his son, Tristan Leddy; his son, Scot Leddy of Brookings, SD, and his children Darian, Quinn, and Jett; and his son, Wade (Lori) Leddy of Twin Brooks, SD, and their children: Rebecca (Alex) Harms, and Allison Leddy. He is also survived by 13 great-grandchildren.

Gene is preceded in death by his parents; brothers: Arlo and Dale; and sister, Arlys Jacobs; sister-in-law, Shirley Leddy; and brother-in-law, John Jacobs. The family requests memorials be directed to Grant County 4-H in lieu of flowers.

Leonard Leroy Lodoen

Leonard Leroy Lodoen, 85, a lifetime resident of Westhope, ND, died peacefully with his wife and family at his side on Thursday, February 16, 2023 at the Baptist Health and Rehab Center in Bismarck, ND.

He was born in Westhope on March 17, 1937, the son of Clarence and Hazel Lodoen and the eldest of four children. He attended Westhope High School and was a key member of the basketball team which won the North Dakota Class "C" tournament in 1954. Upon graduation, he began a lifetime of farming and ranching north of Westhope, living on the same farm since 1960. He refereed the basketball games of, and later married, Bette Henry on October 22, 1959. They were married for 46 years until her death in 2006. They shared many interests including their love of the rural life and history having co-authored "This Land of Mine," a history of the local community and its homesteaders. They have four children: Jim, Toni, Penny and Matt. Leonard was supportive of his children, assisted them in pursuit of their many dreams and endeavors, and was proud of his grandchildren's accomplishments whether in showing cattle, farming, sports, music or academics.

Leonard married Maysil Malard, a diabetes nurse educator and widowed farm wife, on June 27, 2015. Leonard spent the last 3 ½ years of his life in the Bismarck Health and Rehab Center where he enjoyed the daily visits by his loving and dedicated wife Maysil who lived a mile away.

Leonard liked farming but loved his cattle. His first experience showing cattle was in 7th grade when his steer earned him a white ribbon — last in the class at the Bottineau County Achievement Days. He was determined to do better and the next year his steer was first in the red-ribbon group. After that he showed the grand champion the next three years in a row. From this start, he and his brother Myron, and their families, developed a nationally recognized herd of Hereford cattle and then a nationally recognized herd of Red Angus cattle under the name of L83 Ranch. He exhibited cattle at all the major national shows, resulting in many champions. He developed a reputation among cattlemen of both breeds as a known student of bloodlines, genetics and performance criteria. Cattlemen, young and old, sought his advice.

He was recognized as the International Seedstock Producer of the Year by the Beef Improvement Federation, Agriculturalist of the Year by the NDSU Saddle and Sirloin Club and along with his wife Bette, recognized as Golden Age honorees by the Bottineau County Crop Improvement Association. He and Bette were honorary Westhope FFA Chapter Farmers and he received the NDSU Outstanding Agriculturalist Award for Bottineau County.

He was also called upon to serve in many capacities including as a director and president of the American Hereford Association, being appointed by the Governor to serve on the North Dakota Board of Animal Health, and locally serving on the Westhope School board, Bottineau County School Reorganization Board, president of the Westhope Rural Fire Department, director of the Farmers Union Grain Elevator, director and president of the Bottineau County Fair Board, elder of the First Presbyterian Church, and as a leader for the B&W Livestock and Antler Farm Boys 4-H clubs. He also brought the motion and arranged support to have the state fair officially located in Minot.

Leonard is survived by his wife Maysil, his children Jim (Teresa) Lodoen, Toni (Myron) Broderick, Penny (Russ) Ballantyne, Matt Lodoen and daughter-in-law Jennie Lodoen, 15 grandchildren, and 13 great-grandchildren, his brother Myron, sisters-in-law Patty Lodoen and Wanda Henry and Maysil's children Kim (Doug) Rausch, Lowell (Shannon) Malar and Wendy (John) Wellmann, and their respective children.

Leonard was preceded in death by his parents, his wife Bette, son-in-law Joel Joraanstad, brother Myron, nephew Dusty Lodoen, infant sister Linda Lou, brothers-in-law Bob Henry and Clyde Kersten and sister-in-law Robin Kersten.

The family prefers memorials to the Westhope Volunteer Ambulance Service, Westhope Volunteer Fire Department or the Westhope Cemetery Fund.

Hereford Feedout Numbers Climb

January 24, 2023

KANSAS CITY, MO – More Hereford breeders and commercial users of Hereford genetics are discovering the feedlot and carcass performance of their genetics through various American Hereford Association (AHA) programs.

Currently, 94 participants from 22 states are feeding more than 1,400 head of Hereford and Hereford-influenced feeder cattle at HRC Feed Yards, Scott City, KS. The numbers encompass the Hereford Feedout Program* and the National Junior Hereford Association (NJHA) Fed Steer Shootout.

“Every year, we see increased interest in these programs from our members and their customers because of the value they find in benchmarking feedlot and carcass performance in their programs and then tracking subsequent performance relative to their benchmark,” says Trey Befort, AHA director of commercial programs.

These cattle feeding opportunities enable participants to enroll a few head or entire pens of cattle. They receive ongoing updates about how their cattle are performing while on feed and then receive a collective summary of all cattle enrolled in the program to see how their cattle performed relative to the entire group.

“The value of this information and being more closely engaged with the cattle feeding sector has always been important. It is becoming invaluable as more cattle are channeled into specification-based, value-added areas of the supply chain,” Befort says.

All participants can attend an annual educational field day at HRC Feed Yards, which delves into various aspects of the cattle markets, cattle feeding and beef packing. This year's event is April 15.

NJHA members enrolled in the Fed Steer Shootout can partake of additional educational activities, including Beef Quality Assurance certification, as well as competitive opportunities, throughout the program.

“These programs provide value to those who have never fed their cattle before and those who do so on a routine basis,” explains Bill Goehring, Libertyville, Iowa, AHA president — a Hereford breeder, commercial cow calf producer and sale barn owner and manager. “These programs are a convenient, cost-effective way for Hereford seedstock producers and their commercial customers to identify how their genetics perform in the feedlot and in the packinghouse. The data also adds increasing accuracy to the breed's genetic evaluation.”

*Hereford Feedout Program — participants enroll a minimum five head of same-sex (steer or heifer) cattle for feeding within a designated delivery period; participants can enroll whole-pen groups outside of designated delivery period.

NJHA Fed Steer Shootout — participants enroll individual steers or pens of three steers.

Stillahns Celebrate 40th Wedding Anniversary

Gene Stillahn and Cindy Holloway met at the West Texas Fair and Rodeo in Abilene, TX in 1981. Gene was working for Ted R Cooper Ranch in Paso Robles, CA and Cindy was a gorgeous Fair Queen handing out awards to the exhibitors. This twist of fate developed into a long-distance relationship between California and Texas that eventually culminated into a romantic wedding in Lake Tahoe, NV on February 12, 1983.

For the next four years, Gene's work took them to California, Oklahoma and Texas working for Ted R Cooper Ranch, Belford Ranch and Born Herefords. In 1984 they were blessed with their first son, Christopher, when they were living in Oklahoma. In 1986, they returned to Gene's hometown, Cheyenne, WY where they bought a ranch southeast of town and started raising Hereford cattle. Their family continued to grow when they added two more children. In 1988 came their daughter Amy and son, Trey in 1995. Beside ranching, Gene worked at Coastal Chem Company in Cheyenne before retiring in 2001 to do what he loves the most, raising Hereford cattle on their ranch, affectionately known as Sticks and Stones Ranch. Cindy worked for the State of Wyoming Board of Nursing before retiring a few years ago and is thoroughly enjoy-

Happy Anniversary from your children and grandchildren — Christopher and Sarah, Graceon and Cambrie, Amy, and Trey.

Hoffman Recipient of Annual James Carmichael Memorial Scholarship

Miles Hoffman from Leola, SD is the recipient of the $1,000 James Carmichael Scholarship presented each year by the Carmichael family.

Miles is a second year student at South Dakota State University pursuing a degree in Animal Science with a minor in Agricultural Business Marketing. He plans to return to the ranch after graduation.

James Carmichael, Meadow, SD, was a lifelong Hereford breeder & cattleman. He was a quiet man, very devoted to his family and friends. James had a great appreciation of all livestock, but especially his Hereford cattle. He very much appreciated the quiet, peaceful range country they lived in. James Carmichael passed away in September 2007.

The Carmichael Family has dedicated this scholarship fund to James Carmichael's memory. His widow and children wish to honor his name and memory by giving young people that have a love for Hereford cattle and agriculture an opportunity to further their education in the hope of providing strong leadership for the agricultural world in the future.

Applicants are eligible from South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and Nebraska. It is available to all High School Seniors and those already attending colleges or universities. Application deadline is Dec. 31. For more information contact Keith Carmichael at 605/490-7659.

Chastain Honored for 50 Years Service to Texas Hereford Association

Jack Chastain, former Texas Hereford Association manager and editor of Texas Hereford magazine.

Jack and his wife Lyn Chastain with their son Lee, his wife Candace and their sons Griffin and Jackson. The grandsons are the sixth generation of Chastains on the land that was deeded to the family in 1853. They have raised Herefords since 1930.

With the close of the 2023 Fort Worth Stock Show, Jack Chastain ended his livestock publications career that spanned beyond five decades.

His son Lee says, don't worry he's not slowing down, he's just finally taking the time to focus his efforts on a few more personal endeavors. We can all agree that Jack was a dedicated employee and a consummate professional.

Congratulations Jack!

From the Texas Hereford Assn.

Jack Chastain known across the country as the face of the Texas Hereford Association (THA), he is considered the driving force behind the Hereford breed in the Southwest.

An admired ambassador of the breed, Jack began his storied career more than 50 years ago when he was named the executive secretary of the THA in 1973. He has spent his dynamic lifetime promoting and supporting Hereford producers at every level from purebred Hereford Beef markets. His ability to effectively network with all segments of the industry has been a binding force as the THA continues to be a national leader in junior and senior memberships and registrations.

As many put it, when you think of the THA, you think of Jack. He has played a huge role in elevating the national Hereford show at the Fort Worth Stock Show and in building its prestige. The Texas membership meeting at the Fort Worth Stock Show is a true testament to the Chastain family's passion, enthusiasm and drive to better the THA and the breed.

Jack has traveled countless hours to sales and shows across the country to keep THA and AHA members at the forefront of the industry. In fact, when he first took office, he journeyed throughout the state to meet every producer in the THA membership to study each individual's herd. When not on the road, he can be found in the Fort Worth office organizing the THA magazine and striving to get new members for the adult and junior associations.

Jack and his wife, Lyn, are recognized as some of the most generous and proactive youth supporters in the breed and are longstanding Texas Junior Hereford Association advisors. They have operated Mockingbird Hill Herefords since their marriage in 1975 and in 2019, added their son, Lee, daughter-in-law, Candace, and their two grandsons, Jackson and Griffin, to the operation, now called Chastain Cattle Co. Their grandsons are the sixth generation to operate the land deeded to the Chastain family in 1853, which has been home to Hereford cattle since 1930.

Together, the family has built a legacy of Hereford cattle reaching far beyond their roots in Fort Worth. Their devotion to serving the membership and progressing the THA and the breed as a whole is unrivaled. Kyle and Michael Pérez of Pérez Cattle Co. note, “When Jack finally decides to retire, there will be a hole as large as Texas in the association that may never be totally filled. There has never been anyone more deserving and dedicated to this great breed.”

Editor’s Note: Jack was the National Show Honoree at the 2023 Fort Worth Stock Show.

Auctioneer:

79 Two-Year-Old Hereford Bulls
— $4,307

73 Two-Year-Old Angus Bulls —
$4,788

16 Yearling Angus Bulls — $3,828

Mild temperatures in Valentine, NE welcomed buyers for the Logterman Family bull sale on Monday, February 13. When Ed Logterman moved here in 1913, he stated that you had to either be stubborn or stupid to live in this area. A couple months of challenging weather has proven that our generation falls into one of those categories. When all of this snow melts, we are sure to see green grass as we move cattle to pasture.

Five of the top selling bulls had sires that were home grown. The top coming two year old Angus went to Dale Stoner who purchased DL 4188 Showdown for $8,000. DL Musgrave Crackerjack 1015 went to Christiansen Land & Cattle for $8,000. LB Haase & Sons purchased DL 8064 MSK GRV Aviator 1001 for $7500, DL 6366 Make It Rain 1412 for $7000 and DL Musgrave Crackerjack 1187 for $7,000.

Top coming two-year-old Herefords included L 9118 Mauer 1318 to Dexter Black for $7,250. McMillan Ranch bought L 8207 Gallatin 1210 for $6,500 and Wesley Schmidt purchased L 9118 Mauer 1354 for $6,500.

LLL Resilient 207 was the top yearling Angus at $7,500 and went to Steve Kaup.

LLL Resilient 214 was purchased by Chris Huddle for $4,750.
