Editorial Comments...

Jill Bayers Hotchkiss

Jill Hotchkiss

Since our last issue Marc and I have attended 18 sales in 22 days. The pace continues but with a "break" from the road to be in the office and get this issue of Hereford America out. I don't get to all the sales but quite a few.

Our video company, The Livestock Link has done 19 sales since February 1. It's been a whirlwind for all of us to say the least but the production sales have been good and we've seen a lot of great Hereford cattle. The TLL crew covers other breeds too so they are seeing cattle of other colors. More sales to come!

We've had the privilege of having two young women travel with us this winter. Halle Walsh from DeGraff, MN, has been working for The Livestock Link with an occasional stint working for the paper and she is a valuable asset for both companies.

Olivia Douglas is visiting from Ervie Herefords in Stranraer, Scotland and has traveled with us to a quite a few sales.

They both have strong Hereford backgrounds and we have enjoyed having them here with us.

As we continue on with the spring bull sale season, time will tell how the recent downturn in the market will affect it. I hope everyone fares well.

Thank you for your responses to my editorial last month. I heard from several people across the country. Never underestimate the power of a good one-liner!

Iowa's Johnson Family Celebrates Over 100 Years of Raising Herefords

By Jill Bayers Hotchkiss

Jack Johnson rides through pairs prior to the 2018 100th anniversary celebration at their farm near Milford, IA.

Hard work and perseverance combined with a foundation laid 102 years ago has ensured the success and continuity of the Johnson Hereford herd today.

Jack Johnson and his wife Lynne, greet you with a smile and a firm handshake, then the conversation quickly turns to cattle — Herefords are in their blood and mine.

The Johnson family has raised Hereford cattle for 102 years on the family farm two miles south of Milford, IA. Ernest "E.O." and Esther Johnson, Jack's grandparents, were married in December 1917 and quickly got into the cattle business.

"For wedding presents grandma got a Singer sewing machine from her parents and Grandpa got a cow and bull from his parents. We still have the sewing machine," and the cow and bull started the breeding program.

At Home with Herefords:

Five Generations of Tenold Family Caring for Land and Livestock

By Ruth Wiechmann

Bob Tenold was raised in the house he calls home. He and his wife Norma raised their four children in the same spot that Bob's parents raised their brood of 10: seven girls and three boys, of whom Bob was the youngest.

Bob's father, Peder Tenold, heard about the homesteading opportunities in western South Dakota and left his native Norway in 1910 to pursue the promise of owning land, farming and raising livestock on the prairie. Peder followed three of his brothers, Ivar, Christian, and Ingebright to the new world.

Peder settled just east of the Slim Buttes in Harding County, South Dakota, after short stints at various ventures including shingling the fair building at Albert Cows at Tenold Ranch near Reva, SD,

Lea, MN, and herding sheep for a fellow who paid but didn't feed him.

Peder built a one room shack on his land and in 1924 married Astrid Rasmussen. Her parents had homesteaded just north of the Tenold place, and in 1921 when Astrid was eighteen she immigrated from Norway to join them.

Trent's continued desires were to learn scripture and sharing the Gospel through evangelism and discipling others. Having this desire, he was mentored by Pastor Gavin Retzer of the First Baptist Church in Brookings where he also became a member. He was enjoying studying through the Timothy Pastoral Apprenticeship and was excited to be learning Hebrew and Greek. He also worked in construction and refereed lower levels of basketball along with playing on numerous intermural teams.

He loved the role as counselor at Byron Bible Camp near Huron directed by Jon Duba and continued that love by helping lead in Equip Campus Ministries under Luke Perkins at Brookings. His soul's desire was to be in ministry and to lead people to the Lord. He also helped with the family cattle and farming operation. Trent loved keeping track of his siblings and their activities and was always intentional about staying in touch.

He was preceded in death by his maternal grandfather, Rev. Doyle Ellis who had a great impact on his spiritual life and shaped his call to ministry.

Grateful for having shared in his life are his parents, Todd and Melanie Hofer of Hitchcock; five siblings, Travis (Leah) Hofer and their son, Barrett, all of Hitchcock, Morgan Hofer of Warrenton, Missouri, Trevor Hofer of Hitchcock, Ty Hofer of Hitchcock and Madison Hofer of Hitchcock. He is also survived by paternal grandparents, Eldon E. and Alie Hofer of Hitchcock, maternal grandmother, Eva Ellis of Claremont, South Dakota; his aunts and uncles, Helene (Brad) Wedel of Yale, Shari (Mark) Steinheuser of Tulare, Kenneth (Jodi) Hofer of Hitchcock, JoEllen (Tom) Salmen of Tulare, Darinda (Lars) Tunby of Houghton, South Dakota, Laronda (Mark) Becker of Waterloo, Iowa and Lonnie Ellis of Houghton, South Dakota; his cousins, Andrea (Bret) Larson, Jessica (Derrick) Bulthuis, Sarah (Zach) Schweinsberg, Nathan (Anna) Wedel, Emily Wedel, Lance Steinheuser, Scott (Jaclyn) Steinheuser, Shaylyn (Clint) Stout, Brittani Hofer (Jose Tepexpa), Chelsea Hofer, McKenzie Hofer, Kolby Hofer, Jeremy Hofer, Elizabeth Salmen, Thomas John Salmen, Erik Salmen, Matthew Salmen, Neil Salmen, Chantel (Orrin) Hughes, Shawna (Ryan) Hagy, Krista (Moses) Geiger, Dawson Tunby, Sierra Tunby, Genae Becker and Daniel Becker; and his girlfriend, Katelyn Duba of Huron.

His memory will be cherished by all of them and the hundreds of extended family and friends he made along his brief journey of life.

Peder and Astrid had three children before they added on to this tiny house, which is now the kitchen of Bob and Norma's home.

"We've had Herefords as long as I can remember," Bob said.

He fondly recalls the fun of branding time when he was a boy, wrestling calves to be marked with Peder's Rafter T I brand and his Uncle Chris's T Double Bar brand, both of which Tenolds' herd carries today.

Bob and his siblings attended the Jefferson School about three miles southeast of the ranch.

"We rode horseback to school most of the time," Bob remembered. "If it got really bad during the winter dad would take us with the team and sled, with heated bricks at our feet to keep them warm."

The family milked cows and sold cream and eggs to the Reva Store to help pay for their groceries. Astrid made cottage cheese and butter for her family and canned meat in her oven when the family butchered, as well as preserving garden produce, canning pears and peaches in season, and making jelly of the wild chokecherries that grew on the prairie. Mary Negaard, a neighbor woman whose children were all grown, was a big help to Astrid at these times, and Peder eventually moved her house right into the Tenold's yard so that she could be closer.

"She was like a second mother to us," Bob said.

Bob attended High School in Hettinger, North Dakota, and there got acquainted with Norma Viken, who grew up about twenty miles north of the Tenold Ranch on Duck Creek. Bob worked at the gas station in Hettinger for a short time after high school, then came back to the ranch. (His brother Willy broke his back in 1990.) Bob and Norma married in 1961. They had four children: Ricky, Sheri, Todd and Daron. Bob and Norma milked dairy cows and added sheep to the ranch.

"When we first got married we sold cream and bought groceries and had money left over," Norma recalled with pride.

They leased a place to the south of their ranch where there were already sheep, so they bought some, ran the others on shares, and eventually bought out the rest.

"If you're going to get up at night to look at heifers you'd just as well look at the sheep too," Norma chuckled. "When they start farming there's no time to keep an eye on them."

Heifers and sheep start calving and lambing around March first on the Tenold Ranch, and the cows start calving around the twentieth to the twenty-fifth of March. About half of the herd is bred to black bulls, including the heifers for improved calving ease, the two year olds, and everything Tenolds pasture in a Forest Service allotment in the Slim Buttes. The F-1 baldy steers and heifers get that extra dose of growth from the hybrid vigor and always sell well, and Tenolds keep their replacement heifers from the straight Herefords. All of the calves are backgrounded on the ranch, with the steers usually being sold in February and all the heifers except for replacements sold in March.

Sires that have influenced the Tenold cow herd have come from a number of breeders in the area; Stadheim, Weishaar, Tachenko, Carmichael, Stroh and Friedt bulls have all been used over the years.

Tenolds do some farming to raise their own feed as well as doing some custom farming in the area. Corn is planted for feed and silage, Hay Bet barley is grown for hay and they grow a little oats to feed the sheep during lambing.

Over the decades Bob and Norma have planted a number of shelter belts around the yard and in strategic locations in the pastures to provide protection for the cattle.

There are even still a few trees in the yard that Peder planted most of a century ago. The shelterbelts have been a lot of work to get going; Norma would go out to hoe the little trees when Todd and Daron were young while they were taking a nap. The effort has paid off.

"I think trees make a place look nice besides providing windbreak," Norma said. "A place without trees looks so bare and forlorn."

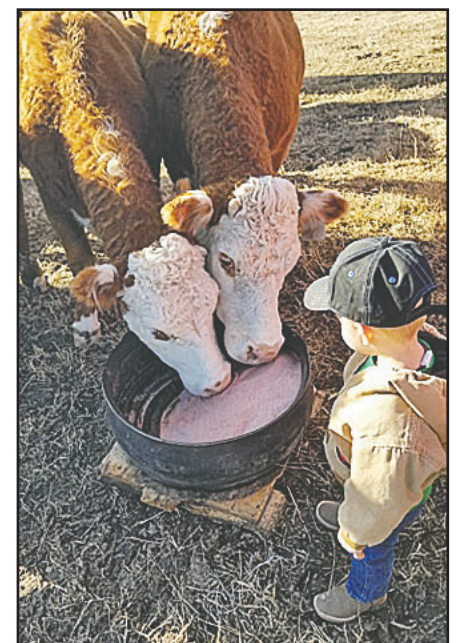

Bob and Norma received a Conservation award from the Harding County Soil Conservation Service/NRCS in 2006, recognizing their efforts with the tree plantings and also a water pipeline that they installed on the ranch. In 2002, prior to the pipeline carrying water from the yard out to the pasture, Norma was hauling water five miles with a truck, making a trip every day to keep up with the thirsty cattle.

"Do you know how many gallons of water a cow can drink per day when it's a hundred degrees out?" she chuckled.

"We put in probably seven or eight miles of pipeline," Bob said. "It made a huge difference in utilizing our pastures. We would have had to sell cows otherwise."

Bob and Norma are enjoying the help of grandchildren and great-grandchildren on the ranch now. Son Daron and his wife Amy chose to come back to the ranch to raise their four sons, Deon, Dace, Dualy and Dawson. Daughter Sheri and her husband Ross Glass live near Hebron, ND. Tragically, Todd and Success in a value-based environment requires hitting multiple benchmarks. It takes females that conceive early, are problem-free calvers, and have a live, vigorous calf that will compete on a quality grid. Red or black baldy females are unquestionably accepted as some of the beef industry's most reliable.

We can make 'em better by selecting Hereford genetics with all the maternal traits AND high accuracy, end product merit. Sandhill Farms Herefords are bred with the end in mind. Every calf, bull or heifer, has the genetic capacity to excel in today's value-based marketing systems. We encourage you to join us Saturday, March 28 at 1 PM and take advantage of genetic excellence designed to help our customers be more successful.

Successful Hereford Night in Huron, SD

By June Dunn

Greater Omaha Field Specialist

On a cold Thursday night in January there really isn't a lot to do in Huron, SD unless you were lucky enough to be at Ryan's Hangar with a group of passionate Hereford producers attending an informative meeting with cattle industry professionals.

This idea started back in August of last year when Matt Zens, SDHA Board member, Chris Peterson, Greater Omaha's head cattle buyer, June Dunn, Field Specialist with Greater Omaha, and Ryan Hofer Chef/owner of Ryan's Hangar all met for a dinner meeting to get acquainted and discuss ideas of how to get more Hereford influenced cattle into feed yards closer to Omaha as well as how to continue to create a demand for Hereford beef in their market at local restaurants and retail locations. Matt had a suggestion to possibly gather a few producers and have a brainstorming meeting sometime in the future and thought Ryan's Hangar would be a good place to hold it as they serve all Hereford beef at the restaurant.

Well, that idea turned into reality when Matt set a date and put the planning into motion. As the date drew closer the word was spreading and the RSVPs kept coming in. We even heard that there was a lot of discussion about this event at the Denver Stock Show which brought even more interested folks to the meeting. There were 92 people in attendance that night and it is our hope that they walked away with some ideas on how to accomplish the original goal.

Matt started the evening off with an overview of the program, then everyone enjoyed a Hereford steak dinner prepared perfectly. Ryan and his staff did an amazing job executing this dinner while serving other guests in the dining room an "All you can eat Crab Legs." This is a very popular destination for a fantastic Hereford steak and it was packed.

An interested group listening to the presentation at Ryan's Hangar Restaurant in Huron, SD.

Matt Zens, SDHA board member welcomed a large crowd to the Hereford night.

Chris Peterson was up next telling a little about his background and how important it is to Greater Omaha to continue to source Hereford influenced cattle to fill the growing demand for the product and the breed. Matt Bode, another cattle buyer from Greater Omaha whose territory covers South Dakota and Northern Nebraska was also in attendance. He had asked one of his feed yard customers that has fed a lot of Hereford influenced cattle, Curt Ollinger, to join the panel as well. Curt gave his perspective on how easily and efficiently the Herefords put on weight and how docile they are compared to other breeds.

Next on the panel were June Dunn

Successful Hereford Night in Huron, SD

Thumbs Up on great Hereford steaks!

and Todd Schimmer, Greater Omaha field specialists, giving a short power point presentation with an overview of Greater Omaha and how their team goes to market selling Greater Omaha Hereford Beef to foodservice and retail distributors nationwide. They shared some of their personal success stories of selling Hereford beef and answered questions from the audience.

Kelly VanBeek, the salesperson from Sysco ND that sells all the beef to Ryan's restaurant also said a few words about what the Hereford Beef has done for his business. He said he is proud to be able to offer Hereford to his customers and stated that once he gets a restaurant using Hereford it is hard for a competitor to come in and take the business away.

Ryan Hofer, chef/owner of Ryan's Hangar, also said a few words about what the Hereford Beef has done for his business. He made the switch about a year ago and didn't mention anything to his regular customers about the change. He said that almost immediately he was getting comments asking if he changed something as the steaks were much better than before!

To wrap the presentation up, the panel asked if there were any other questions. The main question we heard was regarding the premiums being paid on Hereford qualifiers. Greater Omaha does offer a premium and the grid that explains it is printed in each edition of the Hereford America publication. Please reach out to one of our cattle buyers if there are any more questions regarding this and they will be happy to answer them.

There were a few people in the audience that also wanted to share some thoughts, the first being Art Handel, a very familiar name in the Hereford community. Art encouraged the producers to attend the feeder sale in Mitchell and to align themselves with a feed yard that feeds Herefords. He also applauded Matt Zens and the SDHA for this meeting as he said as far as he knows there has never been an event where every single facet of the industry was present and available to visit with. He was extremely impressed.

Vern Rausch wanted to also commend the SDHA for organizing the meeting. He said he was very impressed with the attendance and that he was proud of the way the new younger SDHA board is making a difference.

Overall the evening was a huge success with a lot of networking and plans for the future being made. We at Greater Omaha were happy to be a part of this event and can see some real progress being made as we continue to "Connect the Dots."

Chris Peterson, head cattle buyer at Greater Omaha.

Tenold Family...

Ricky have both passed away, but after Todd's death in 2002, Sheri's son Brian came to help out on the ranch.

"We didn't ask, he just came," Norma said.

"Brian and Daron are both so handy, they can do anything," Bob said. "They're good around livestock, good welders, really capable."

Brian and his wife Chelsey are bringing up their two little boys, Chet and Westyn, on the ranch as well. At two years old, Chet is his daddy's right hand helper with feeding cake, keeping track of salt feeders and taking hay out to the cows and sheep. He knows more about running the ranch than you might suspect!

"When we worked cows last fall Chet was there with a stick, poking the cows coming down the chute," Bob said.

As another winter winds its way down and another spring calving nears, the Tenold family is keeping the cows fat and comfortable on last year's abundant hay crop. The Herefords will always be at home on the Tenold ranch, and Bob is happy to keep it that way.

"They've been good to us," he said.

Lonetree Ranch, Sturgis, SD

Each week, we buy corn fed finished cattle primarily in this region. However, we reach beyond the strike zone to find the best Herefords wherever they might be fed in the Midwest. Even after we’ve concluded our normal weekly trade, we are never too full for Herefords and Baldies. We are always in the market to buy finished Herefords and we offer a premium per head for Hereford program qualifiers. If you’d like your finished calves in our Hereford program, we can introduce you to partner feed yards who custom feed or who buy Hereford and Baldie calves. Whether you want to market your feeder calves or retain ownership, let us help you direct your load lot Hereford influenced feeder cattle into our primary trade area.

Majority white faced requirement. Eligible cattle groups to be sold on this grid must appear phenotypically to be of Hereford and or Hereford Cross English breed type with over half of each lot displaying predominant white faces on the steers and heifers as are consistent with Hereford F1 English crossbred breeding.

In 1918 they expanded their herd and bought 10 registered Hereford cows and a registered Hereford bull, explains Jack. The cattle were 30 miles away in Sioux Rapids, so E.O. walked the cattle home to the farm at Milford. These cattle were most likely Anxiety Dominos and Don Paragon which were prominent bloodlines in the early 1900s.

"By the 1930s they were buying bulls from Les Wiese, Gene's dad. They traveled to sales together," and became good friends, Jack recalls. So some of Johnson herd bulls came from Wieses. The bloodlines during that era were Intense Dominos, Anxiety 4th and Battle Intense.

Jack's grandfather gained a good reputation in the area for being an astute farmer and stockman. Not only did he raise registered Hereford cattle but also horses.

"He loved to buy, sell and trade horses," explains Lynne. "He would buy unbroke horses, and would break them on the farm. He loved doing that. He was a horse trader and into cows. He was a very good businessman and livestock man. He was fantastic at building that reputation."

"He started out when he was a teenager," says Jack. "Everybody farmed with horses but they didn't have studs." When Grandpa was a teenager he ran a stud around to all the neighbors and that was part of his business. "Then he took that same approach with Hereford cattle. He could see they were an up and coming thing at the time."

Several things contributed to the Johnson family's increasing popularity in the area as stockmen.

"Dad started showing when he was about 10. He had Grand Champion Steer at the Clay County Fair four years in a row. This got the attention of the local people who starting taking a serious look at our cattle," says Jack. A good local trade was quickly established.

As a young boy (about 5), Jack and his brother Tom, spent a lot of time with his dad and grandfather. Since Jack's brother was older, he would go with his dad out to work on the farm and with the cattle. Jack was younger so his grandfather would take him along. Back in those days, says Jack, none of the cattle had tags. His job every day was to walk the calves into the barn enabling him to get to know the cattle well. He soon started learning their pedigrees and others, under the tutelage of his grandfather. He quickly learned the 5-generation pedigrees and could recite them. He soon was quizzing his grandfather about pedigrees and at an early age of about 10 or 11 was helping him figure out matings. Jack says numbers still stick with him. He eventually became a veterinarian (1970) so his ability to learn, recall and memorize was ingrained at a very early age, plus he always had the aptitude for it.

"From the time that Jack was five years old," says Lynne, "he would get on his pony and bring the cows home from the pasture every day as they kept the calves home. And almost 70 years later, here we are! We raised four boys on this farm (Jim, Chris, Louis and Tom). They all rode ponies and brouth cows home from the pasture, worked calves and did hours of chores each year."

E.O. and Esther downsized their herd in 1940 primarily so their son Dale and his wife Gladys, Jack's parents, could buy the business. In 1941 they were able to make the purchase and continue the registered Hereford breeding program.

In a note hand-written by Jack's dad, Dale, he explains, "The herd was maintained at around 75 cows using the top daughters of Don Paragon, Panama Stanway, Anxiety Domino 4th, Anxiety Domino 79, Intense Domino 7, Intense Domino 56th, Battle Intense 8, then Golden Aster was introduced in 1947."

In the 1940s and 1950s, the Johnsons often topped the Northwest Iowa Herford Association sale in Sioux City.

The addition of herd bull Golden Aster, was a major turning point. At the time their cowherd was Weise breeding and Golden Aster proved to be an excellent cross on these bloodlines, says Jack. "We never had a bad calf out of Golden Aster." Dad and grandpa bought him from Bones Herefords in early 1947. Bones had two sales a year and they went up to look at their bulls. Bones using D Aster 8th out of Hill Aster for a herd bull. Golden Aster was out in the pasture so Fred Bones took them out to look at him. He had depth, thickness and a yellow coat with long hair which is what they were looking for at that time. They both liked the bull and bought him. He was the best bull they could find and afford at the time. The Golden Aster legacy still lives on. In his prime, Golden Aster weighed about 2,250-2,300 lbs.

In the 1950s the genetic defect of dwarfism hit the Hereford breed across the nation. Johnsons were one of a few herds in the country that did not have any dwarf-carrying bloodlines. The American Hereford Association acknowledged this fact and several prominent breeders along with others purchased cattle from them including Otto Fulscher from Colorado. Fulschers were prominent, foundation breeders back in that era. In those days they averaged about $1,000 per head which equates to about $8,000 in today's money.

In 1955, the Johnsons started having their own production sales and the first two were in Spencer, IA. After that they moved the sale to Sioux City, then back to the farm.

Golden Aster and his descendants were used in the herd for about 50 years, Jack comments. He lived to be 13 years old and sons and grandsons were used for the next 15 years.

In 1955, Harold Harms bought our top selling bull, Golden Aster 123, sired by Golden Aster. A son, Golden Aster 068 was bred by Harms in 1960 and he was out of a Real Prince Domino cow. That bull became a foundation sire for Harms.

Golden Aster 068 and his son 231 were used for about 10 years, then a son of 231 was kept in the Johnson herd bull battery for a number of years. There are still some pedigrees with him in the background, Jack says.

Progeny of Golden Aster were used in other herds in Nebraska. Monty McFate used a grandson of Golden Aster 068 and had sons in his sales into the 1970s. These cattle continued to be known for their yellow haircoat, muscle pattern, easy keeping abilities, disposition, good frame size and hind-quarter, qualities they continue to breed in their current herd. In the 1980s they used a herd bull from Redlin Herefords in South Dakota that had these traits along with size, traits they started to focus on in the late 1970s. These bloodlines carried the Johnson program into the 1980s.

In 1970, Jack and Lynne both graduated from Iowa State University, Jack with his DVM. Their Hereford breeding program shifted to focusing on size and growth. In 1977 they bought into the family business.

Lynne grew up on a farm north of Boone, IA. "My dad raised hogs, farmed, and shelled corn. Mom had a huge garden that we all helped with. She was also an excellent seamstress. Jack and I met at Iowa State the last quarter of our senior year. We were introduced to each other thru mutual friends. Four months later, we were married and will celebrate 50 years this August."

In 1977, they moved back to the homeplace at Milford.

"I have always loved being outside and working with the cattle," explains Lynne. "I had never been around cattle and had much to learn. Jack was a good teacher. I got a kick out of the fact that the Johnsons believed that a woman belonged in the house, but there was no way that you were going to keep me there, and Jack recognized that.

As soon as Tom was two, he and I were working ground or doing whatever was needed outside." Jack and Lynne have four sons, Louis, Chris, Tom and Jim.

In the early 1990s the Johnsons purchased a bull from Thorstenson Herefords, Selby, SD, that was a frame 7.5 and weighed 2,850 when mature. These were popular traits at the time and the bull went on to win Grand Champion at the Clay County Fair as both a yearling and two-year-old. This is one of the larger Hereford shows in several states. Since that time, the size of cattle in their herd has become more moderate.

"In our area now, everyone wants a polled bull," comments Jack. "We went polled in 2008 and went back to Thorstenson's Wrangler bull. He worked well for us." Johnsons still have mostly polled cattle but also a few horned bloodlines. Currently they are using one horned bull and two polled bulls.

In more recent years, Ponca Extra Deep 113, a son of Fawcett's Bob bull, was purchased from Fisher Herefords in Spencer, NE. Jack believes Extra Deep has proven himself in their herd and is almost as good as Golden Aster. His breeding is prevalent in the herd today.

More recent purchases include a Behm Cuda bull purchased from Larry Behm in North Dakota. They purchased two Wrangler daughters from Gant Polled Herefords at Geddes, SD through the SD Excellence Sale in Brookings. Other good females have been purchased out of that sale the past few years. Several good cows that were Dams of Distinction were also purchased in the Flying J dispersion a few years back. Last year Johnson had 14 Dams of Distinction in their herd.

The Clay County Fair has always been an event the Johnson family has supported in spades. "Since 1976, we (Jack and Lynne and family) have shown cattle at the Clay County Fair," Lynne says. "That started in the early '30s. Jack is known as 'Mr. Hereford' at the Clay Co Fair in Spencer. The boys all helped show cattle there as well as at our local county fair and now the grandchildren are following in their footsteps." The fair has grown from 20 head to over 100 head in recent years and Jack and the family have played a huge roll in supporting the fair and making it successful.

In 2018 the Johnson family was inducted into the Iowa 4-H Hall of Fame.

The award committee stated the following: Johnson Family (three generations) — E.O. was one of the founding members of the Dickinson County Fair (Spirit Lake, IA) in the 1930s and remained active in support of the fair for many years. He and 15 other area farmers contributed $100 each in order to purchase land for the fairgrounds. Dale Johnson continued in support of the fair and won Grand Champion Hereford in 1932. After Dale's death the Johnson family started the Johnson Hereford Farms award given annually to the Grand Champion Dickinson County Born and Raised Beef Producer at the Dickinson County Fair. In younger years, Johnson was involved in 4-H and FFA, raising beef on the farm with the family. In 1962 and 1963 he showed the Grand Champion Steers at Dickinson County Fair. Dr. Jack Johnson, local veterinarian and Hereford breeder, has given countless hours to ensure overall safety and health of the 4-H animals exhibited at the Dickinson County Fair. Dr. Jack graduated from Iowa State in 1970, and kept busy at the Spencer Ag Center until his recent retirement. For 20 years he was a member of the executive board of the Iowa Veterinary Medical Association. He served on the Dickinson County Fair Board until 2017. He has also served on the board of the Iowa Hereford Association and in 2013 was inducted to the Iowa Hereford Hall of Fame. The Johnson 4-H tradition continued with their children and now their grandchildren.

The Johnson family also received the Dickinson County Extension Award, citing they have given at least 90 years of service to the Dickinson County Fair, 4-H and FFA programs.

Byron Classics

Editor's Note: Since the death of my dad, Byron, a couple years ago, we have all missed him terribly. I've had a number of comments about his wonderful editorials so have decided to re-run some of them for you. They are truly Classics, just like him. Oh how we miss BB from TB. — Jill
This one is from the April May 2016 issue.

I met Jill at Bozeman, she had traveled from Dallas to Seattle to Bozeman the day before, after attending a major sale in the area of Fort Worth. We were on our way up to the big Holden sale in Valier and since Jill arrived so late in Bozeman we were hurried to make the trip, as Jill had cattle to check out and bid on. We were going to Holdens to what they called the 50th Anniversary Sale, it was the 50th anniversary of the sales that they had held at either Great Falls or their home ranches at Valier. It was a monumental sale that day and it will go down in the annals as one of the great sales of 2016. That afternoon we motored on back to Bozeman to get ready to attend the Cooper sale at Willow Creek. It was necessary that we get to the sales early because Jill had bids for buyers, which meant we needed time to look the cattle over. The Cooper sale was also a 50th anniversary sale and even though it was a different type of sale than Holdens, it will still be one of the great sales that we record in the Hereford annals of 2016. Now I would like to tell you some of "the rest of the story."

In the 1960s Les Holden called me one day and said that he would like to come down and look at our Evan Mischief cattle, and talk about using some of each of our bloodlines in each other's herds. I told Les I would be very happy to have him come down, and he came in a few days, we spent a long day together talking about cattle and looking over our Evan Mischief line. (The Evan Mischief cattle go back to Advance Domino as do the Line 1s. At that time Les was just starting into the Line One cattle from Miles City and had just started with one of their first sales in Stanford, MT. This was a sale that happened before any of the family talks about their 50th anniversary, this sale was held with Les Holden, Jack Cooper and a few other members of the Montana Performance Association, and Phyllis Cooper was the secretary of the Montana Performance Group. It was interesting because at that time I believe that the sale averaged about $450.00 for Coopers and Holdens. Les was interested in our sale because that year our average was over $800.00.

It was good that we got together to talk things over about the Evan Mischief and Line One cattle. Les said that even though he really liked our cattle he would like to go home and talk to Ray Woodward, who was the top L1 man at Miles City at that time, and was advising Les and Jack with the cattle. Les told me he would get back to me in a short time and let me know what they decided to do. I told Les that would be fine and I appreciated him coming down and I enjoyed his visit and showing him the cattle. It was quite interesting to me that Les had come to me first even though I knew that Les was working with Jack Cooper and the Miles City group. Ray Woodward was the brother in law of Jack Cooper, therefore they had quite a connection with the Line One cattle at Miles City.

I might mention it was an interesting thing the way the involvement at Miles City and the experiments they wanted to do with cattle and the Hereford cattle performance. Most of the performance in those days was determined on rate of gain. They had picked up some very different pedigrees of cattle throughout the United States for the evaluations, and gave them all a "Line" and a number. Of course, the ones that they brought in for the Line One were the Advance Dominos that went back to an industry prominent herd of Advance Domino cattle in Colorado, these were some of the top cattle in the U.S. at that time.

From there on the experiment station evolved the Line Ones and they were the top gaining, performing cattle, at that time of the varied lines that Miles City used in the Hereford breed.

ing, "I love cattle — there's nothing like working those baby calves in the spring. It relaxes me after a long veterinary day, to check cows and calves in the pasture. It gives me peace of mind."

Now there are eight grandchildren who are also experiencing the joys of working with the cattle, doing the chores and riding and driving the Kawasaki mules around and as they get older, the John Deere tractors. We are so lucky to have two sons, Chris and Thomas, who live close by in Spencer and are so willing to come and help when needed, continues Lynne. "We hope to continue this legacy of working with Herefords for as long as the Lord gives us!"

Les called me back in about a month and told me that even though he liked our cattle and even though he thought they would be a good cross with each other, he would keep going in the Line Ones and he, Ray and Jack thought they should continue with the straight Line One breeding. They had great faith that it would evolve into one of the good lines of Hereford cattle in the US. It was very interesting at the time because about all of the extremely good cattle out of the Miles City Experiment Station went into the Cooper and Holden herds. The experimenting that was done at Miles City greatly accelerated the growth that the Coopers and Holdens were able to do with their cattle.

Even though Miles City basically had run the cattle on very severe conditions and had tested them through growth and rate of gain, when the Cooper and Holdens got the cattle they started to change the cattle in a lot of ways, and the cattle were much superior to what Miles City had been originally producing. It was also very interesting that at about the same time that Coopers and Holdens had decided to go their own way, and eventually go into their first sale in Great Falls, MT. The Evan Mischief line had accelerated development, we had sold some of the top Evan Mischief cattle to the Fraser herd in Reed Point, MT, which was also popular at the time and they in turn sold some of their top cattle to the Deschmaecker herd in Boyd, MT. The Deschmaecker herd became one of the great herds of cattle in the U.S. with the Evan Mischiefs, they won a lot of the major show awards, were some of the top nationally selling cattle and were recognized as one of the top cow herds in the US, the sales would indicate this factor, because the "big boys" in the breed would show up at the Cooper and Holden sales and at Deschmaecker's, too, and they usually bought from these herds.

At the same time that Deschmaecker was doing so well, the Cooper-Holden sale was picking up momentum. In the 1970s the Cooper-Holden and Deschmaecker herds were probably recognized as the top cow herds in the U.S., at least by many of the experts interested in horned Herefords at the time. It was very interesting that at the peak of his career, Deschmaecker decided to disperse the herd, so they were consequently scattered all over the world. In the meantime Cooper and Holden had kept continuing their growth and prominence in the breed with Line Ones, they went on with the sales in Great Falls for several years before they decided it was time for them both to go to their home ranches with their own sales, so Jack Cooper took his cattle to Willow Creek and had his sale and Les Holden was back at their ranch in Valier for their sale. It was interesting in this period of time with the Line Ones, as Les was starting to age somewhat, his sons each felt that they would like to go on their own, and each of them got into their own purebred operation, one of them actually went into Hereford and then on to Red Angus and drifted away from their home ranch, John went on into a successful polled operation, however it was interesting that Les' grandson, (John's son) Jack, became a favorite of Les, and started to go with him at a very young age, and became attracted to the cattle. Les and Jack had a real bond that grew into a great thing for both and probably the Hereford industry too, because Jack grew up as young boy on the ranch and gradually came into the prominence that he now has, as one of the good breeders of Hereford cattle in the country. Now Jack and Tresha have a son and a daughter working to carry on the Holden operation. Jack was born the year Les and Jack had their first sale!

It was about the same thing that was happening in Willow Creek with the son of Jack Cooper and his wife, Phyllis. Mark was now growing up on the ranch and becoming more interested in the Hereford operation.

Mark went on to school at Montana State and after, came home to work with his Dad, and he eventually would take over the Hereford operation. It is really very interesting that two herds with great breeders were fortunate enough to have a son and a grandson that could come on and carry on with a line of cattle that they originally started and have done so well in the purebred industry. It's kind of an usual story and yet I think it's an interesting story of how a lot of this evolved.

A few interesting highlights that came out of all of the involvement of the Cooper-Holden story is that when Cooper and Holden were first working with the auction at Stanford, MT, a rancher by the name of Jim Fiedler was one of their best customers. Jim believed in the program that started in Miles City and he was one of the first good customers of Coopers and Holdens, and ended up with a good share of the top bulls from those herds. It was very interesting in the 1970s when I was on the American Hereford Association board with Alfred Meeks that Alfred heard about the Line One concept, and how it was growing, so he took a trip up to Montana and looked up this big operator Jim Fiedler, and spent a day with him and finally talked him out of a bull that he wanted, to take back with him to his herd in Nebraska. All of you that read Hereford America know what the Meeks' have done through the years, and again we are in the third generation of the Meeks family, but Alfred was one of the first that started to use the Line One bulls in that famous herd in Nebraska. You also might be interested to know that the Jim Fiedler that I referred to is from one of the good big ranches in central Montana, is the father of Jan Ward of the Ned and Jan Ward operation in Sheridan, WY. These are interesting items that I thought you would like to know. So now you now some of the "rest of the story" of the Cooper and Holden rise to fame.

I had an unusual experience happen the other day at the Cooper sale, as I was walking out into the yard to look at the bulls, two nice young people about five or six years old, and I know they were grandkids of Mark and Cristy Cooper, came over to me and asked me who I was, I told them and asked them who they were, and they told me, and they said, are you here to buy cattle, and told them I didn't know, it would depend on how much they would cost. The little boy said "Well, I hope you can buy cattle, we surely have some good cattle here." And I said "Well, I know you do have good cattle here and it will probably depend on how much I can bid to buy some to the cattle." I told them it was nice to meet them, see you around and they told me it was nice to meet you, too and glad you came and I hope you buy some of our cattle, because we really have good cattle! I told them it was very good of them to say that. I talked to Cristy later and told her "You have really trained these grandkids of yours to sell at a young age and you've done a great job of teaching them of how to promote your cattle." As Cristy usually does, she just laughed and said, "Well, I don't know about that, but they are pretty active." They were a cute little pair of kids and it's sure nice to see some of the grandkids in an operation like Coopers that are interested and caring about what is going on in the operation. It was an interesting experience.

What a great American success story this is, two good men started in tough times, paid the dues, built their herd to premier status, passed on to three generations, this is the stuff our American agricultural dreams are about. Start with a sale averaging $450 and build it through a life time to over a $12,000 average, is a great success story. But remember the dollar now is worth about twenty times more than 50 years ago. A new Chevy then was about $1800.

Johnson...

4-H and FFA programs.

In the fall of 2018 Johnson Herefords held an event celebrating their family's 100 years in the Hereford business. The amazing history of cattle and family and overcoming hardships through out the years was celebrated at the farm by about 200 friends and family.

Currently the farm is owned and operated by Jack and Lynne Johnson but their sons and other family members help out when needed. "Jack and I have shared the joys and trials of working together on the farm and with the cattle since our youngest son, Tom was old enough to go outside," says Lynne. It has been a very special journey with some really long days in the Spring during calving season and in the fall during harvest. Through it all, Jack remained a full-time, practicing veterinarian as well."

Jack says, "It makes me humble and proud that we still have the farm going and we could be a part of it. I was lucky to be brought up as a part of it, able to buy into it and make it stay economically viable." He summarizes by say-
